

MOHAMMED'S STORY

University student Mohammed lives at home with his family and has a spinal cord injury. His condition means he is unable to weight bear and needs to use a wheelchair at all times to enable him to carry out daily activities.

Mohammed's wheelchair was heavy and difficult to put in his car as he drives to university. This has resulted in him feeling tired by the time he gets to campus. The wheelchair was also affecting his posture and making it difficult for him to socialise the way he wanted to.

Referred by another charity, Mohammed needed funds towards a special lightweight wheelchair that he would be able to take in and out of the car by himself.

Independence at Home made a grant of £600 towards a new lightweight wheelchair. Now Mohammed has greater independence, improved comfort and feels less tired. He can take a fuller part in student life.
